

REMARKS

Status of the Claims

Upon entry of the foregoing amendments, claims 25-32 will be pending in the instant application. In an Office Action dated June 22, 2004, claims 1-19 and 22-31 were rejected, and claims 20 and 21 were withdrawn from consideration.

Claims 1- 24 have been cancelled without prejudice. Claim 32 has been added to claim the compound identified in Example 208 in the specification as originally filed. Claims 25, 26, and 30 have been amended to update dependency in light of the cancellation of other claims. No new matter has been added.

The Present Invention

The present invention relates to phenylalanine enamide derivatives, to compositions containing them, to processes for their preparation, and to their use in medicine.

Comments

Claim 32, the only remaining independent claim in the present application, has been added to claim the compound described in Example 208 of the specification as originally filed. Claims 25-31, which depend from claim 32, are similarly altered in scope.

As a result of ongoing research, Applicants have developed an increased interest in the compound of Example 208 and a heightened recognition of its importance as a pharmaceutical treatment. Because of this increased interest, Applicants wish to streamline the patent prosecution process in an effort to gain speedy allowance of claims directed to that compound. The claim amendments reflected in the above listing of claims are intended to further that goal, and do not in any way reflect Applicants' position regarding the merit, or lack thereof, of any of the rejections made in the pending Office Action.

Because Applicants continue to believe that they are entitled to the entire subject matter described in the pending application and wish to pursue patent claims directed to the remaining subject matter, a continuation application is being filed concurrently with this response. That continuation application contains claims directed to the subject matter
